Every week, Ella arrives to her steel top working station at No More Empty Pots and finds a packing checklist. She pulls empty boxes from storage ready to fill with bright and bold produce, straight from farmers all around Omaha. The afternoon of packing will be busy but full of learning and dreaming too. While she packs, Ella is filled with hope as she reflects on all the food that will be delivered to the neighbors in Omaha who need it. She feels hopeful that good food is being packed for good people.

No More Empty Pots, alongside Ella, is inviting you to come join her!

From May to August, we have confirmed dates for a summer volunteer schedule. Volunteers are encouraged to sign-up and help team members like Ella with all kinds of tasks around the Food Hub. Whether working in the garden or in the kitchen, volunteers are invited to help out, to learn, and most importantly, to share hope. Thank you for supporting No More Empty Pots in making a difference. Our collective future is bright when each person does their part so everyone can thrive!

In March, Lueder Construction launched the renovation of the 17,500 square foot facility and greenhouse at the Highlander Accelerator campus (2112 N. 30th Street) in collaboration with Seventy Five North. No More Empty Pots and Field Day Development!

Q: What spaces will be included at the facility?

Inside the "greenhouse" facility are three levels of interactive and diverse spaces being renovated to include a classroom; commercial kitchen for instruction, training and rental for events; a science lab; a local foods focused micro-market accepting multiple payment options; No More Empty Pots staff offices; and the top-level greenhouse.

Q: When will programming start?

A public grand opening is tentatively scheduled for December 2023. Programming within the renovated spaces is expected to launch by January 2024, with more opportunities to come as partnerships are confirmed.
